Final Argument #3 – Demonstration of a Roadmap

A roadmap from counsel for Stevenson might look like this, assuming it went to a full contested trial on the merits:

“Because the Pursuer’s claim is a dramatic departure from the current state of the law, I will first present the legal argument first to show why this Court should reject the claim regardless of whether there was a snail in the bottle of ginger beer served to Mrs. Donoghue.

After that, I will address the facts of this case, to discuss why there are good reasons to doubt Mrs. Donoghue’s version of what happened and then why it was likely not Mr. Stevenson’s bottle that was the source of her claimed injuries.”
